Scott T. Thompson, 25, of Dillsburg was killed Friday June 16 at 1:21 a.m. when his vehicle collided with a tractor trailer on Route 15 at Lisburn Road.

collided with his vehicle. Upon impact both vehicles travelled several hundred feet in the southbound lane and went down over a bank where the Thompson vehicle caught fire and burned. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Cumberland County Coroner Michael L. Norris. The driver of the tractor trailer was charged by Police with driving under suspension.

SHOPPING CENTER APPROVED

By Mary Lou Bytolf

The Carroll Township Board of Supervisors approved the preliminary final plan for what is now called the Dillsburg Strip Center on Tuesday evening.

Without discussion, supervisors David Lavertue and Larry Eichelberger accepted the plan subject to two conditions. The township engineer first must approve the design of the proposed sanitary sewage system. The supervisors also stipulated that Orebank Road be capped from Route 15 to Siddonsburg Road.

Gary Reihart, chairman of the Board of Supervisors abstained from voting. The sewer line to the complex runs through his property.

The shopping strip will be located on 39 acres of land bordering Route 15, Orebank Road and Siddonsburg Road.

According to Developer John Vokral of the Dillsburg Land Corporation, a supermarket and several satellite stores will be included in the first phase of development. Construction may begin next spring or summer, he said.

At the June 6 meeting, the board of supervisors tabled voting on the preliminary plan for the strip center. Supervisor Lavertue requested the additional time to allow the supervisors and the public to review the plan.

In other business, the supervisors appointed Tom Carl of Fairway Hills to the Carroll Township Planning Commission.

Carl fills the vacancy left by Jack Wineski who was removed from the commission after failing to report to four consecutive meetings. At the June 6 meeting, Planning Commission Chairman John Desiderati notified the supervisors that according to Ordinance 72-1988, Section 3, "a seat on the township planning commission shall be deemed vacant when a member of the commission fails to attend three consecutive meetings during any calendar year."

At that meeting, Supervisor Eichelberger moved to table Desiderati's request until he could contact Wineski.

On Tuesday, Eichelberger reported that Wineski's absences were due to his working out-of-town for those months, and that he anticipated an additional four-month absence. The supervisor said Wineski told him he wished to continue to serve on the commission.

OPEN HOUSE

The Pinchot Area Jaycees will be having an Open House Sunday, June 25, 1989. We would like to encourage the local community to come and see our Chapter House. The old Maytown Schoolhouse. We would like to talk with the people in our community to find out more about the schoolhouse and its origins.

The other reason for holding this Open House is to speak with the local community about our chapter and the kinds of projects we have run in the past and our future plans. We need to find out from the community those things/events they feel we could run or assist with, either with manpower or sharing monetary expense.

So, Come One, Come All and get to know the Pinchot Area Jaycees. The location is at the corner of Alpine Rd. and Rt. 177, just north of Gifford Pinchot State Park. The time for the Open House will be 2 p.m. till 5 p.m., June 25, 1989. Any questions, please call Paul Baughman after 5 p.m. at 938-3355.

The Pinchot Area Jaycees meet every 2nd and 4th Wednesdays of every month at 7:30 p.m. at the Old Maytown Schoolhouse.

Supervisor Lavertue said that a full commission is necessary at this time. Lavertue and Reihart voted to have Carl replace the absent member, while Eichelberger dissented on behalf of Wineski.

Also on Tuesday, the supervisors hired Robert Noss of Monaghan Township as a trainee road master of $9 an hour with full benefits. Former Roadmaster Gerald Metzler resigned on June 16.

In the new business section of the meeting, James Hess reported on the progress of the Logan Park Authority. According to Hess, construction plans for the Dillsburg/Carroll Township recreational area will be completed this year.

The park authority is in the process of obtaining funds for the project, Hess said. The authority will contact local developers and businesses, as well as state and federal organizations for funds, he said.

Hess told the supervisors that in spite of some excavation problems, the park will have "a nice layout" with "a lot of open space."

One township resident wished there was more open space between his property and a growing manure pile. James Smith of Chestnut Grove Road told the supervisors that a gentleman from the state Department of Environmental Resources had told him the large manure pile would be removed from the neighboring Heritage Acres Horse Stables by Marc Smith said some, but not all of it has been removed.

Smith estimated that 15 tractor-trailer loads of manure was piled within 100 yards of his property line.

"I feel my water table could be contaminated in due time by the large amount there."

Smith said Heritage Acres may be violating Solid Waste Management Act 97, and requested the board of supervisors to contact DER on his behalf.

David Heiser, owner Heritage Acres, said he was well aware of Act 97, and presented a copy of it. Heiser said he gets four or five visits a year for DER and his farm is under no violation. Heiser said it has been impossible for local farmers to remove the waste during the present rainy season.

"Do you think a tractor-trailer could have pulled in there in the past 60 days?" he questioned.

Heiser chided the board for its failure to inform him that his business was on the agenda for that meeting.

"No one notified me . . . I found out by accident when I tried to buy a horse from one of the supervisors," he said.

Reihart told Heiser that he would have been given a chance to respond to the allegations if he had missed that meeting.

Before adjourning, the supervisors reported that the house numbering in the township has been completed. Anyone who has not received a house number should contact the township secretary immediately.

Franklin Township Planning Commission

The Robert Grace subdivision plan, previously having been approved by the Board of Supervisors, was formally withdrawn by Engineer John Shambaugh and resubmitted as a revised plan, during the June 13th meeting of the Franklin Township Planning Commission.

The change in the plan was the deletion of an easement on the southern side of the property, Mr. Shambaugh explaining that this easement is not on the Grace property and research shows that it is not in the place that was indicated on the approved plan. Mr. Glenn Smith and daughter were at the meeting and Mr. Smith claimed that the does have an easement over the Grace land and that he was putting the township on notice to that effect. The township had received copies of letters from both Mr. Grace's attorney and Mr. Smith's attorney, each with opposite views of the easement. It was decided that the township involvement should be explained by the township solicitor in time for the supervisor's meeting on June 20th. The commission voted to recommend approval of the plan conditionally on the results of the opinion of the solicitor as to the obligation of the township in the easement matter.

Christine Yohe reviewed a sketch plan of a property she owns off of Franklin Church Road, proposing to divide it into 4 add on parcels for sale to neighbors. The plan was reviewed and discussed by the commission and advice and recommendations were given.

Gregory L. and Joanne M. Oley-Two Lot Minor Subdivisions-Private Chain Saw Road

Mr. Grove reviewed his letter dated 5/12/89 with the commission. The commission suggested to Mr. Oley that he could request a variance from strict adherence to Section 514B of the township ordinance. The commission voted to disapprove the plan due to the nonreceipt of a sewage planning module from DER and comments contained in the Grove review letter.

Theodore Laukemann Jr.-Long Lengths, Inc.-Land Development Plan-S. Mountain Road

The plan is a revised plan of a previously approved land development plan - this plan showing the addition of two buildings to the tract on South Mountain Road. Mr. Grove reviewed his letter dated 6/12/89. An action of the Board of Supervisors in February of 1987, concerning waiver of the requirement to hook up to public sewer, was reviewed by the commission. The commission voted to recommend disapproval of the plan due to the lack of an approved storm water management plan and to recommend to the supervisors that they reconsider the waiver of February 1987 and to recommend that the project be required to hook up to public sewer and public water at this time.

Maholon McCloy reviewed a sketch plan proposing to divide off a one acre lot and add the balance of about 1/2 acre to an existing property, the property located at corner of Franklin Church Road and Meadow View Road. The commission reviewed the proposed plan and advice and recommendations were given.

Mr. Sardar Tariq reviewed a sketch plan in which he proposes to divide an existing tract of land from his property into two parcels. This was formerly subdivided and the parcel of 2.4 acres was approved in December of 1986, with the stipulation that the lot in question, #2, be treated as an add on lot to the parcel with buildings on this was the Bonsel subdivision. It was noted that the proposed further subdivision is within 1,000 feet of public sewer line and, if on lot sewage was to be considered, would have to be both tested and approved for this and a waiver from the township ordinance requirements would have to be granted by the supervisors. Advice and recommendations were given.

William P. Eichelberger-Preliminary Plan-5 lots-S. Mtn. & Rocky Ridge Roads

It was noted that an approval of the sewage planning module has been received from DER. The plan showed the 1,000 feet arc from the public sewer line, as previously requested. Engineer Grove noted that the storm water management plan still needs to be completed. The commission voted to recommend approval of the plan as a preliminary plan subject to the final plan having a satisfactory storm water management plan and a notation on the plan that a state highway occupancy permit for the lot fronting on S. Mountain Road, must be obtained and is not guaranteed by the township. The Grove review letter was dated 6/12/89.

Marlin Fleming-Land Development Plan-South Mountain Road

Engineer Grove reviewed his review letter dated 6/12/89. This plan proposes to divide off the business portion of the property from the balance of the farm. It was discovered that there is no existing sewage disposal system on the business portion proposed to be divided off. The commission voted to recommend that this plan be disapproved due to the need for sewage testing and needing an approved sewage planning module from DER.

A question on dual driveways and if the number of driveways on a property is controlled by the township subdivision and land development ordinance or solely by the road occupancy ordinance was discussed. It was decided that further opinion should be obtained from the solicitor.

A sketch plan of Donald Ohlum showing the division of an existing property into two apartments was reviewed. The commission also reviewed the subdivision and land development ordinance and it would appear that the minimum area required is one acre. The property of Mr. Ohlum appears to be less than 1/2 acre. It was decided to notify Mr. Ohlum that it appears there is insufficient land area to contain the two apartments and to send along a copy of page 58 of the ordinance.

First National Nondependence Day Celebration

One day after the nation celebrates its independence, the American Lung Association's (ALA) Nondependence Day, July 5, offers millions of Americans a chance to declare a new freedom—freedom from nicotine addiction. Smokers who have tried to quit once, twice, even three times, and failed, need not despair. Throughout the country, 134 Lung Associations will celebrate the new holiday with special festivities to call attention to ALA's highly acclaimed Freedom From Smoking (R) programs.

A simple written test to help smokers determine their level of nicotine dependency will be available, as will proclamations of Nondependence. Supported through a grant from Lakeside Pharmaceuticals, Nondependence Day is also a day when the nonsmoking family and friends of smokers can declare their support for and encourage their loved ones to quit.

This year the ALA of South Central Pennsylvania will be celebrating Nondependence Day on Market Square, Market Street, in York, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Q-106 radio, with D.J. Mark McKenzie, will also be on the square helping the ALA to celebrate this day with a Kiss Your Butt Goodbye live broadcast. Cigarette girls will be passing out Nondependence Day proclamations, balloons, how-to-quit smoking literature, snacks and beverages. They will also be signing people up for Freedom From Smoking (R) Clinics to take place the week of July 10-14.

Phar-Mor Pharmacies in York and Cumberland Counties will also booths set up on July 5 for people to stop by and declare their freedom from nicotine addiction.

The 1989 Surgeon General's report reaffirms earlier reports that smoking is the single most important preventable cause of premature death in our society.

Q. Why did Jamie Lee Curtis decide to take on the chores of a weekly series? While I enjoy "Anything But Love," I found it odd that she would depart from such a recently successful career on the big screen. R.C., Bad Axe, Mich.

A. Jamie absolutely loves the big screen, but she is certainly enjoying doing a weekly comedy series — especially since it is one of the comedy hits of the season. The main reason for the change, though, was not money. Ms. Curtis has a 2½-year-old daughter whom she wanted to spend more time with, and the current scheduling of "Anything But Love" allows her that time.

Q. I never miss a Joe Franklin talk show, but I am wondering if there is anybody who has never appeared on the show? R.H., New York, N.Y.

A. Joe proudly confesses that just about everybody in show business has at one time or another appeared on the show. In fact, such people as Barbra Streisand, Bette Midler, Joan Rivers, Bing Crosby, Bill Cosby, etc., all received their first major television exposure on his show. Bill Cosby credits Mr. Franklin with getting his career started. In addition, Bette Midler used to be Joe's secretary, answering his always-busy telephone lines.

One problem Joe has encountered during his 40-year stint on the tube is that once big stars have their careers skyrocketing, they don't return to do the show. Why? According to the dean of talk-show hosts, Joe, stated: "It's too painful for them. Doing my show reminds them of the early days of their career when they were broke and had no money and they were getting their first chance on my show."

Any hard feelings? If so, Joe isn't admitting to it. The man is pure class.

Q. Exactly how old is Dolly Parton? M.C., Athens, Ga.

A. Dolly proudly admits to being 43 years of age. In fact, Dolly says she has never felt or looked better in her life. I agree.

Q. Are Madonna and Warren Beatty now dating? H.F., Culver City, Calif.

Q. I hear Madonna is a great cook; is this true? C.D., Cherry Hill, N.J.

A. The hot Hollywood rumor mill is turning fast and furiously with the Madonna-Beatty rumor. As for Madonna's culinary talents, she says that she can only cook about four things really well. The best dish is popcorn.

What To Know About Fiber

by Judith Sheldon

Some of you may have heard that taking fiber or bulk laxatives lowers blood cholesterol, and you're wondering if taking regular doses of same is advisable. Here are the facts:

Some laxatives, especially those containing psyllium (derived from a seed grain) have been shown to have beneficial effects on serum cholesterol. However, before you rush out to stock up on Metamucil or similar psyllium based laxatives, there are some warnings of which to be aware:

1. Taking a psyllium-laxative to lower blood cholesterol levels can cause bloating, gas, diarrhea and abdominal cramping;

2. The cholesterol level is lowered only so long as you take the preparation.

3. The Food and Drug Administration has noted that it will not permit marketing claims that psyllium lowers cholesterol because regular use may cause the person taking it to become so adapted to the psyllium's high fiber content that it no longer works to lower cholesterol but may, instead, allow the levels to move up.

4. You may develop a dependency on it to maintain regularity.

5. Excessive use of the high fiber product may prevent absorption of some minerals. (High fiber foods are often high enough in mineral content to offset losses.)

The safest, and often the most effective way, of reducing LDL cholesterol and raising the HDL levels includes, reducing the intake of saturated fats, eating more foods high in soluble fiber, such as fruit, vegetables, and grains, and exercising. If cholesterol-lowering drugs are needed, your doctor may permit you to use psyllium laxatives as a safe, inexpensive alternative.

NEW HEALTH SCAM: Germanium is a grayish metallic element found in coal. Leave it there! Ignore all claims you may read, see, or hear, that proclaim germanium as the cure-all from the mysterious ancient East we've been waiting for. It is not. This so-called ancient miracle preparation is not an adoptogen (a high sounding word scammers use to describe something that's supposed to help you cope with stress); it's not an electroneutrient (another scam word) that's supposed to enhance your life force to the optimum, nor does it strengthen the immune system to ward off AIDS, cancer, and yeast infections, or anything else.

What it may do is cause severe kidney problems over a long period of use. What it does do is make money for its promoters.

DESK NOTES: Recovering from Lyme disease does not confer immunity. You can be reinfected by a new bite ... Exercising in hot weather can cause you to lose a quart of water an hour. Weigh yourself before your workout and afterward, then drink a pint of water for each pound you've lost.

Q. When Dustin Hoffman made his Oscar speech (he won for "The Rain Man"), he talked about his sick father. But didn't he talk elsewhere about a brother who was autistic like the character he plays in the movie? Also, I'd love to see the movie again and this time pay more attention to Tom Cruise who did a great job although overshadowed by Dustin. Rachel G., Newton, Mass.

A. Hoffman has talked during interviews about the real person who is the basis of the character he portrays in the film. As for Cruise, yes, he did a great job and it's to his credit that he took pride in the flick winning Oscars for Best Actor, Best Director (Barry Levinson) and Best Screenplay (Ronald Bass and Barry Morrow) even though he was out of the running. For your information, the movie will be available on video cassettes from MGM/UA Home Video on August 30. If you buy or rent a cassette, you can enjoy all the actors' work to your heart's content.

Q. I'm crazy about Jack Scalia. I loved him on the series with Rock Hudson and again when he was on "Dallas." Is he ever going to do another series? Marilyn B., Tulsa, Okla.

A. Scalia will star in a new CBS series called "Wolf" which debuts this fall. He'll play a former policeman who had to leave the San Francisco police department after being framed for a crime he didn't commit. He later teams up as a private investigator for a lawyer played by Nicolas Surovy whom "All My Children" fans will remember as one of Erica's (Susan Lucci) great loves.

Q. I continually hear about "trash TV." I'm curious; what do some of today's respected journalists really think about this conception? E.B., Sacramento, Calif.

A. Hugh Downs, who has been on television for 50 years, does indeed think that it exists, but he feels it will not last. According to Mr. Downs, television trends change about every six years and this should also be the case with "trash television." Hugh has nothing against it, he is just lucky not to be involved in it. Audience boredom will put an end to "trash TV" according to Hugh, and that is the best and only kind of censorship that should be involved with the tube. However, Hugh predicts that since television works in trends, it will return in the future.

Veteran's Post by Freddy Groves

I often wish I could inflict selective amnesia on those who pass misinformation along. Recent case in point involves queries from anxious veterans asking if there were somewhere they could apply for service-connected disability benefits before the time limit was up. It appears these vets read somewhere that this time limit has been in effect and that it's about to run out. This is totally false information. However, the Department of Veterans Affairs says that while there is no time limit, "...the date of application is a factor in establishing the effective date of payment." The sooner you apply, the easier it is to establish entitlement. The longer you delay, the more problems you may have finding witnesses and getting documentation to substantiate a claim that the disability was service-connected.

POST SCRIPT: I've no room to list all who wrote about the deteriorating care and conditions in veterans hospitals and outpatient clinics because of funding cuts. But thanks for your letters. I agree. These cuts must be restored. The excuse the budget is under pressure to fund anti-crime programs is no excuse for committing a betrayal of the commitment to provide veterans with the best medical and psychological care available.

This Week In History

This week in 1876, Col. George Custer and over 200 soldiers were killed in his famous "last stand" ... In 1944, a G.I. Bill Of Rights law was signed, providing veterans with benefits ... In 1947, The Taft-Hartley Labor Act curbing strikes was vetoed by President Harry Truman ... In 1985, an Air India Boeing 747 mysteriously crashed into the Atlantic Ocean off the southern coast of Ireland, killing 520 aboard.

Paint & Household by Bob D'Angelo

Q. Upon opening a tightly sealed gallon of paint with more than half the paint still in it, I found this thick coating of hardened paint on top. How can this be prevented? S.W. Bayville, N.Y.

A. The easiest way is to press plastic wrap into the can covering the paint. This will prevent air from hitting the paint causing it to dry. When you replace the lid, cover it with a rag and lightly tap it with a hammer. The rag will prevent splashing when you tap it. Another tip in paint can etiquette is to punch several small holes in the lip of the can. This will prevent paint from accumulating in the lip and possibly overflowing. Instead, the paint will drip via the holes back into the can.

In addition, when I buy stock paint from the shelf, I always have it shaken. Paint may remain on the shelves for a period of time and the pigment may no longer be suspended. And, if I should forget to have my paint person shake the can, then I simply place it upside down overnight. It may sound risky but they're tightly sealed. Nevertheless, I do it in my workshop not on my living room rug.

Q. I have heard the terms "faux finishes" and "trompe l'oeil" used. Can you explain what they mean and what the difference is? T.J., Long Beach, N.Y.

A. The term "faux finish" refers to a painted finish that appears to be something it is not. Examples are "faux marble", false marble, and "faux bois", false wood.

"Trompe l'oeil", whose literal translation from the French is "to fool the eye," is similar.

Q. I recently put new sheetrock in my attic to create a new room. I found when putting the moulding around the windows, doors and baseboard that the moulding does not go flush up against the sheetrock. The spaces between the walls and the moulding make the job look amateurish. How can I straighten this out? L.T., Bayville, N.Y.

A. My suggestion is "If it ain't broke, don't fix it." You don't have to straighten the moulding out. Instead, caulk the spaces between the moulding and the walls the same way you would caulk the exterior of your windows. Run a narrow bead along the mouldings where it meets the wall, and then run your finger along it to remove excess. Use latex caulk as it can be painted and is the least expensive.

Have a question? Send it to Bob D'Angelo, P.O. Box 173, East Norwich, N.Y. 11732.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

by Charles King Cooper

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Talks with bigwigs on the job will be highly successful, but guard against unwise expansion. You'll profit from some down-to-earth advice about one of your projects. In addition, keep home expenditures within reasonable limits.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An unexpected social meeting could interfere with your plans for the week. Parents make plans regarding a child's future welfare at this time. One career idea may be a bit far-fetched, so think before acting.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Unexpected company could be headed your way this week so keep up on your domestic chores. Your creativity is now at a peak. You'll enjoy a stimulating summit with a young person. Guard against unnecessary evening expenses this week.

MOON CHILDREN (June 21 July 22) Seek more than one opinion regarding a future investment matter. Competition is touchy in business at this time, but you will end this week with career gains. Be determined in this area. Romance looms for you this week as a person from your past reappears in your love life.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Don't let an argument with a close tie about money spoil what should be a trusting and long-lasting friendship. You're good at promoting yourself this week as your creativity is on a high. You're most persuasive with honchos at work and family members on the home front.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Some complicated problems may arise in your social life this week, but you're able to turn things around to your satisfaction by week's end. It won't take much to start a squabble this week, so use tact when dealing with others whose personality is extremely sensitive.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Guard against an unwise use of credit on pleasure pursuits this week. A chance to get ahead drops in your lap now, but you must capitalize on it with some hard work and determination. Ignore the fiery set of relatives in your life at this time looking to stir up some turbulent times.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Exciting and enjoyable times come this week in the company of friends. Extra drive puts you on top of a business concern. Confidential information is entrusted to you. Social contacts can be trusted at this time and may be helpful to you in business.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) This week local travel has romantic overtones. Creative pursuits are favored now. Try not to spend too much money this week. You'll also meet with success on the job. Favorable behind-the-scenes developments affect your financial picture.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Try to use your leisure time constructively. There's a tendency to worry too much about a career matter. You could be making a big deal out of something inconsequential. This is not the best week to ask for favors from friends.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) This week is probably not the best time to win someone's heart. Financial problems could arise now. Worry could keep you from being your best self. You may be concerned about a domestic matter, but try not to take your frustrations out on those close to you.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You'll have luck with a business venture, but silence could build a wall between you and a close tie this week. Don't let small things become stumbling blocks. Make sure you keep all communication lanes open at home and on the job.

Tots To Teens

by Sue Ellen Sullivan

Dear Sue: I'm a single parent with five children. I have to work all day to support us. Although I'm not happy about it, the children are on their own most of the time. They have their school work and they also have chores to do around the house. The child in the middle is the problem. He never does his chores and so the other children have to do them. This makes them mad and they take it out on him. They fight with him all day and then when I get home, they want me to punish him too. I'm sure it seems to him that he has five parents instead of one. Will all this scolding from me and his brothers and sisters hurt him? Vanessa R.

Dear Vanessa: Your son is getting an awful lot of attention by misbehaving. Middle children can sometimes feel ignored, and unfortunately, your son seems to have found the wrong cure for this problem. To turn this situation around, you have to find good things to praise your son for. Ignore the bad things he does as much as you can and give him attention for the good things. Convince the other children that he will learn to behave by watching their good example. A little peer pressure from his brothers and sisters can be an effective way to change his behavior for the better, but be sure he isn't getting attention only when he is misbehaving.

Soap Updates by Seli Groves

ALL MY CHILDREN: Melanie and David planned to meet in Paris when Palmer insisted on sending her there to study the piano. In an effort to prove to Dixie what a scoundrel Adam was, Tad confronted her with the news that her medical file contained no indication that she can't have sex until after the baby is born. Marissa paid off Trevor's blackmail demands with money from Palmer. Determined to find out what he can to break up Cecily and Nico's marriage, Sean snuck into their home to eavesdrop on their arguments. Wait To See: Palmer gets the "point" on two fronts — or is it the shaft?

ANOTHER WORLD: Rachel had a dark premonition about Mac and flew to Maine to see him. She was with him when he died of a heart attack. Iris was crushed at the news. Adam Cory arrived for the funeral, as did Clarice and Larry. Amanda encouraged Sam to go to the art show in New York. Lucas felt as if he'd met Michael before. Mitch insisted on helping Felicia find her daughter; he also questioned Lucas' intentions and warned her to be careful of him. Wait To See: Abigail's arrival starts things moving.

Harrison found Simone unconscious and rushed her to the hospital where she learned she might lose her baby. As Felicia and Colt prepared to take their marriage vows, "Bruce," the bearded stranger who escaped from the Turkish jail, made his way to the wedding. Wait To See: Felicia sees a ghost; Scott sees red as Lucy sees dollar signs in her future as a Quartermaine.

Pretending t be a model, Sam got the name of Billie's agency. J.D. planned to ask Jessica to finance his album. Rob got the book contract, but wasn't sure how he should proceed. Later, Jessica turned up at his place and they embraced. Joel tried to talk Martin out of honoring the deal with Henry. Wait To See: Jessica finds friendship makes its own demands.

Wade warned Mari Lynn their marriage would end if she didn't go to California with him. Sarah finally told Bo that Austin had raped her. Later, as Bo stood over Austin's empty grave, Austin hit him over the head, threw him into the grave and began filling it in. Wait To See: Austin's plans for Sarah take shape with Bo "out of the way."

SANTA BARBARA: Eden suspected the worst when Rafael didn't turn up at their planned meeting with Cruz. Laura had a feeling that she and Michael might still have to face Leo someday. Meanwhile, Leo escaped from jail and headed for Santa Barbara. C.C. tried to persuade Greg not to leave town, telling him he reminded him of himself when he was younger. Greg, fighting tears, told him that he is his son. Mason learned someone is setting up the company for a takeover. Wait To See: Laura realizes she may have placed her life in Ethan's hands.

YOUNG & THE RESTLESS: Britt's suspicions about Cassie grew stronger. Jill insisted Kay agree to the story that Nina voluntarily signed the agreement not to claim Philip's estate. Victor gloated over his success in taking over Jabot, including his plan to fire Jack for his part in producing the book, "Ruthless. Brad warned Traci he was determined to get her back. SKETCHES FROM A LIFE, by George F. Kennan (Pantheon: $22.95).

Perhaps it is not surprising that George Frost Kennan, the American diplomat who so affected United States policy toward the Soviet Union during post-World War II years, so yearned for an earlier existence. "... I cannot help but regret that I did not live 50 or a hundred years sooner," he writes in one entry. "Life is too full in these times to be comprehensible." Yet it was this same George F. Kennan who took the measure of Soviet brutality and expansionist ambitions while serving as ambassador to Moscow and devised the containment theory that dominated U.S.-Soviet relations basically until the Gorbachev era.

However, these excerpts from the memoirs of a long and productive life are more impressionistic than detailed accounts of people and events. Kennan creates mood themes on the places he visited and times he lived through. He records, for instance, one of the most poignant descriptives I have ever seen of a city undergoing the tread of the conqueror's boot — that of the Czechoslovakian city of Prague in 1939.

Though it has been more than 40 years since Mr. Kennan dealt directly with the Soviets, he noted then an observation that is most applicable today when U.S. companies avidly seek the Reds' business. "When a people finds itself in the hands of a ruthless authoritarian regime which will stop at nothing, it finds itself beyond the power of others to help. Gifts presented to it can be given only to the regime, which promptly uses them as weapon for the strengthening of its own power."

The jottings of Mr. Kennan as diplomat and educator are sheer poetry in the telling, history viewed by a trained eye, and omniscience that rivals the predictions of Nostradamus.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

DEAR DIANE

by Diane Van Arsdale

DEAR DIANE:

My husband and I have been married four years, and we're both in our late 20s. I was working when we were first married as an editor for a magazine. Later we bought a house and I quit my job as there was so much to take care of with the new house. We've been settled in the house now for a year, and my husband is never around anymore. He stops off with his friends after work for drinks. He comes home all hours of the night. He thinks I should stay home, and really insists upon it. I would like to go back to work also, and he thinks my place is in the house. I'm starting to lose patience. He treats me the way men treated women for centuries — clean house, stay home, have dinner on the table, etc. Is this talk just a ploy to throw me off as to what really might be going on? Like an affair?

DEAR UPSET:

That could very well be the case, but you'll never know unless you confront him outright about it. Tell him what you suspect and why. I also think both of you would benefit from some marriage counseling. There is no reason for you to hang around the house like some Victorian housewife when you could be out doing what you enjoy. It sounds to me as if your husband is threatened by any outside activities you may engage in. That insecurity has to be dealt with in a counseling situation before the situation reaches explosive proportions and you simply pack up and leave.

DEAR DIANE:

I read about the 67-year-old

DEAR DEX

by Dexter Dyer

DEAR DEX:

I've been dating this man for three years now, and I've told him I would like to get married already. So, about four months ago, we were finally engaged. We have no set date yet for the actual wedding. When I ask him about it, he just seems to change the subject, or if he should say anything about it, it's something like, "Let's have a good year's engagement, and then we'll set the date." Well, I would like to get married now, not two years from now. Do you think it's possible that this is just another way of buying time with me, and he really has no intention of marrying me?

PATIENTLY WAITING

DEAR PATIENT:

I'm afraid that's exactly what I think. There are many men like your boyfriend. They can't seem to make a commitment, but they don't want to lose what they have. If necessary, they will become engaged, but they will prolong the wedding as long as it takes. Translated, that means he will not set a date and will wait you out until you either force him into it or leave him. Personally, I don't think you should force the issue. It would be wisest in this situation to break off the engagement, letting him know why, and see other people, as well as this man. This should give him some food for thought, as well as the time he seems to need.

DEAR DEX:

I'm 36 years old and have never been married. I recently met a 19-year-old girl, and have fallen in love with her. Her parents said she is too young for marriage, that she must go to the college of their choice and get a higher education. That particular col-woman who is being forced off her land because someone wants to buy it.

Here are a few suggestions:

1. Donate the land to your favorite charity with a stipulation that you can live there forever — the Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts or a church. You could also specify that the charity not sell the land.

2. Borrow all you can against the land. Take out insurance against the loan and have some fun. With a large mortgage on the land, perhaps the local bank will take an interest in protecting it.

3. Get a gun and shoot trespassers.

4. If you have relatives you trust, you could transfer the land to them with an understanding that it never be sold.

The idea is to get the decision out of your hands into the hands of someone you trust, or make the appearance that the decision is not yours so they won't pressure you.

Perhaps you could form a corporation and stipulate in the charter that the land never be sold.

GOOD LUCK
A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND:

I liked your suggestions with the exception of number three. However, I'm sure the other ideas will be quite helpful and are very practical for the lady who wrote. Thanks.

Leave Wildlife Alone

Every year at this time, well-meaning individuals pick up wildlife, especially young, that they mistakenly believe has been abandoned. The practice is not only harmful to the wildlife, but is also unlawful as well.

Very few private citizens have the expertise and facilities to raise wildlife. And wildlife conservation officers, who are also limited in their facilities and time, become overburdened with birds and mammals that have been removed from the wild by well-meaning persons with little understanding of the ways of nature.

Usually adult wildlife is near the youngsters. Adults don't spend every moment with their offspring. Part of being wild is developing instincts and skills necessary to survive, and the youngsters have to be alone at times to sharpen natural defenses and abilities.

Often these youngsters are plucked from their natural environment before they have been able to escape, only to become orphans unable to survive, either in captivity or if released into the wild.

Of increasing concern is the possibility of contracting disease. Rabies, Lyme disease, and tularemia can be contracted from exposure to wildlife. In Pennsylvania, raccoons are the chief carrier of rabies, an incurable, fatal viral infection. Foxes and skunks are other important rabies carriers, and must also be avoided.

Also becoming a problem is the afore-mentioned Lyme disease. Over twenty-six species of mammals and eight species of birds have been identified as hosting the tick that carries this serious disease.

Pennsylvanians are warned by the Game Commission that it is unlawful to pick up and possess wildlife, except deer killed on highways (must be reported to the Game Commission within 24 hours). Fines can reach hundreds of dollars, depending on the species involved. Leave wildlife in the wild.

$100,000 For Waterfowl

In another joint venture, the commission approved a $100,000 contribution to the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation toward implementation of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan.

The plan is an ambitious, cooperative effort between the United States and Canada for the protection, restoration and management of waterfowl and waterfowl habitat.

Pennsylvania's contribution to the national foundation will be returned dollar-for-dollar for use in the Keystone State on approved projects within designated joint venture areas in acquiring, enhancing and developing critical waterfowl habitat.

The Pennsylvania Game Commission this week executed a memorandum of understanding with the National Wild Turkey Federation, under which the federation will make contributions to the agency to further turkey development in the state.

Under the agreement, the federation's contributions will be used for purchase and development of habitat for wild turkeys as well as other wildlife, for educational seminars, equipment and other turkey-related ventures.

In advance of the agreement, the Pennsylvania state chapter of the federation recently gave the agency $26,000 towards a historic cooperative land acquisition project involving the Game Commission and the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy.

In the three-way venture, the conservancy acquired 624 acres in Dunbar and North Union Townships, Fayette County, and then sold the tract to the Game Commission. The acquisition, prime turkey habitat, was added to more than 15,000 acres of State Game Lands No. 51.

The state chapter contribution came from its "Pennsylvania Super Fund," monies accumulated through fund-raising activities conducted by the state chapter.

The memorandum was signed this week during the commission's regular June meeting in Harrisburg.
